
Positive specificity indicates less advocacy than random controls. Positive quality values indicate damage; narrow retention results are reported separately.